The Class of 1959 gratefully dedicates this yearbook for her sincere devotion to the total education of the students.

Purpose

Some years ago, when first I saw the distant sturdy wall,
I hung my head, I failed to see
the purpose of it all,
So far away, so much to learn
across the empty plain,
Eternally, forever more
my task it was to gain.
But inch by inch I made my way
and traveled down the road,
The dust flew, it stung my eyes,
I stumbled with my load.
Recovering, I kept my track,
progressing ever on,
And then one day, I raised my eyes
and saw the road was gone.
The massive wall that once had loomed impassable ahead
Had shrunk in size, was now so close,
no longer sight to dread.
I marveled long, and joyously
I jumped upon the wall,
And then I knew, 'twas then I saw
the purpose of it all,
For there ahead lay majesty,
the forest pure and fine,
In which to grow, my seeds to sow;
the world, all was mine.

Dear Mr. Denn:

As co-editor of Futura, I am proceeding with the organization of the senior yearbook. Our aim is to present an informative and well-balanced representation of material. I have read your messages to the senior classes in the two previous yearbooks, and I feel that your thoughts must have served as an inspiration to the students. I am certain that the class of '59 would be pleased to have a message from you included in our annual.

The close of the academic year of 1959 marks for us the end of an important decade. Therefore, we have chosen as our theme "The Fabulous Fifties".

Sincerely yours,
Bonnie Wexler

Miss Bonnee Wexler
Co-Editor, Senior Yearbook

Dear Bonnee:

Thank you very much for your invitation to contribute to the 1959 issue of Futura. As you have reminded me, the close of the academic year 1959 marks for all of us the end of an important decade, one which you have chosen to endow with the epithet of "the fabulous fifties." How well I remember those years! While you were growing up in them, I and those of my generation lived through them.

For some, life in the fabulous fifties was like that of the French citizen who was asked what he had done during the French Revolution and whose reply was, "I survived." For most, living in that exciting decade was an experience comparable with that of Ulysses in Tennyson's poem:

"Much have I seen and known; cities of men
And manners, climates, councils, governments;
And much delight of battle with my peers
Far on the ringing plains of windy Troy."

The fabulous fifties may best be recalled in the future as a decade which centered the attention of man on production; a decade when we produced more goods, employed more people, and created more material wealth than ever before in the history of our nation; a decade in which our motor cars were bulkier, our suburbs burgeoning, our school corridors and university campuses overcrowded, and our shopping centers proliferating. John Kenneth Galbraith in "The Affluent Society" summarizes the decade in these words: "Both the ancient preoccupation with production and the pervasive modern search for security have culminated in our time in a concern for production... A high level of production has become the keystone of effective economic security."

If there is anything disquieting in this picture of the fabulous fifties, it is that other nations, particularly the dictatorships, have also set production as their goal. And sometime in the late fifties we learned that while we were producing far in excess of the rest of the world an abundance of motor cars, television sets, hi-fi's, and gadgets for the "man who has everything"; the monolithic states were producing engineers, nuclear physicists, mathematicians, and research biologists and chemists in the ratio of three for every one of ours.

However, it was an interesting decade, one which will be fondly recalled by both of us as having as its golden links our school and the pleasant haze that memory draws over our youthful past. The fond backward glance that we cast upon the fabulous fifties must inevitably be replaced by the "forward look" that sends its powerful "sealed beam" into the more exciting, more abundant years that I trust lie ahead for you and your fellow graduates of the Class of 1959.

A Fable

All of the inhabitants of the Forest of Foxes were running toward the Meeting Mountain. The silver foxes were running from the west, and the red foxes were running from the east. They ran until they reached the top of the mountain, where Renard, the leader of the silver, and Leonard, the leader of the red, were face to face. Their people sat down, but they remained standing, contemplating each other. They raised their paws to their people, and no further sound came from the mountain that was half red and half silver but the heavy breathing of the two leaders. Then Renard put down his paw and broke the silence.

"We are gathered here at the summit of Meeting Mountain to discuss the grave problem confronting us. With our advances in science and technology, we have been building more and more deadly traps in the past years. These traps have been used in the fight between the red and the silver foxes for mastery of the entire forest. So far, the damage done by these traps has been relatively small, and the balance of power has been maintained. But recently we have simultaneously devised a trap that may well end society as we know it, and perhaps all life in the Forest of Foxes. We, the silver, do not know by what methods the traps of the red foxes accomplish their destruction, nor do the red know the secret of the silver. But these traps have both been secretly tested on hunters, and we do know that if they are used against us, our end will soon be upon us."

At this point Leonard stepped forward. "Friend Renard," he began, "let us now get down to business and discuss the future of these traps, and thus our fate."

The red foxes and the silver alike were held spellbound, although the sun crossed the heavens twice as their leaders discussed and argued. Their eyes were fiery and their tails quivered as the discussion grew more and more heated. At last their eyes became calm and their tails drooped quietly. They stood up, and Leonard announced,

"A decision has been reached. Our world is safe. All traps are to be destroyed at once."

The citizens were motionless for one moment, and then, as a body, they jumped to their feet and waved their tails madly. Some leaped high into the air, and the atmosphere was one of mad rejoicing.

"Peace forever!" shouted Renard.

"Hooray! Peace! Hooray!" echoed the foxes.

"Work together!" cried Leonard.

"Hooray! Together! Hooray!" echoed the foxes.

And they all went home.

The fable is not yet ended. It has three possible conclusions. The first and second are much alike in essence:

Both camps of foxes were clever. Both traps must be, each side knew, well camouflaged, expertly hidden. So once they were in their own homes, they did not dare to venture out, for fear of being caught in an enemy trap, even though the enemy had declared that his traps would be destroyed. After all, everybody knew that foxes were sly and not to be trusted. Thus, both the red foxes and the silver foxes perished of inaction and starvation.

In the second ending:

The foxes all realized that they had to trust each other. But just to make sure, each refrained from destroying his own traps until the sincerity of the opponent should be proven. So they stepped cautiously out of their abodes, ready to spring back at any moment. And the red foxes and the silver were all killed by each other's traps.

But the fable might end like this:

The red and the silver foxes went home, surrendering themselves to trust as their only salvation. And in the days that followed, no trap stopped their steps. They lived out their normal lives with just a shadow of fear as they walked through the forest, and sometimes a start at the unnatural cracking of a branch. But their children grew up free of the taint of fear. Red and silver children worked together to liberate themselves from the menace of hunters and from nature's pitfalls. And they lived happily ever after.

As the Fabulous Fifties come to a close, we look ahead to the future. Will we discover that we have been cast in molds of distrust and prejudice? Will we step fearfully out into life, only to be ensnared by a trap? Will the Fabulous Fifties give way to the Sinister Sixties, or will the coming decade be remembered as the Secure Sixties? Surely the teachings of past years, and the exigencies of the present will jolt civilization out of its prolonged and turbulent adolescence into a rich and rewarding maturity.

JOYCE GARTER

The Crucible

The students who will graduate from Martin Van Buren in 1959 are largely products of the Fifties. It is in this decade that we will have spent most of our formative years. The trends, the events, the character of the times have made an indelible imprint upon us. It was in this decade that we started and completed the bedrock of our formal education. When the decade began we were children, as it ends, we cross the threshold of adulthood. What this decade has given us, and what we have taken from it, will profoundly influence our lives.

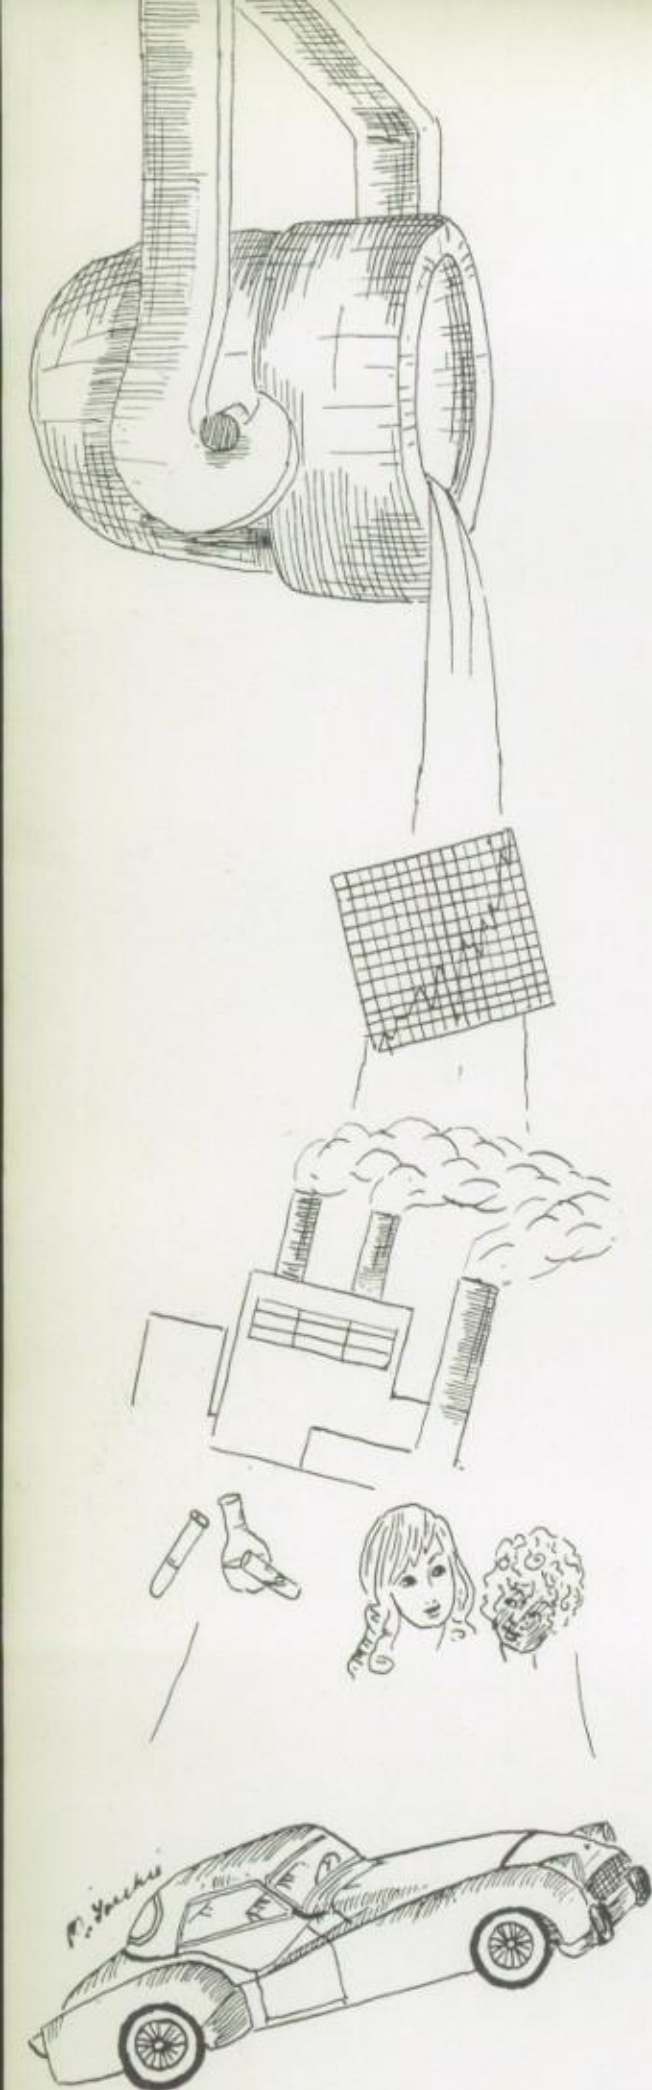

The international political events of the Fifties were ominous in portent. This was a decade marked by the emergence of two armed camps—one despotic, one democratic—each pressing to establish its own political philosophy. It saw the continuance of a strong tide of nationalism which had begun in 1776 and was now storming the Middle East, Africa, and Asia. In some areas of the globe, old empires disintegrated, some of the fragments to be engulfed by the newly constituted Communist imperialism.

This decade began under the shadow of war as had the previous one. Only this was a different kind of war—a war small in size but fought against a background of weapons that could make the world uninhabitable. The Korean war was a contained conflict, a jet of flame bursting forth at a point where the cold war had grown hot. It was a testing ground and a time of calculation, of miscalculation, of brinkmanship, resulting in large shifts in the balance of power in Indo-China and the Middle East.

In 1952, for the first time in twenty years, a Republican became President. In Dwight D. Eisenhower the G.O.P. had found a leader whose popularity approached that of Franklin Roosevelt. With General Eisenhower as their leader, the Republican Party gained control of both houses of Congress. However, the sentiment of the nation remained predominantly Democratic as evidenced by the regaining of Congressional control by the Democrats in 1954.

Another significant political change was wrought by the third branch of the government when, in 1954, the Supreme Court declared segregation in the public schools unlawful. To the South this meant a major social upheaval, an upheaval that is still continuing on political, social, and economic levels. Little Rock took its place among the historical symbols that are created when "the old order changeth, yielding place to the new."

Many of the political developments in the Fifties gained significance because of scientific advances. The atomic era had begun in the previous decade, but it was in the Fifties that it began to come of age. The force that had made the Korean War so ominous now metamorphosed itself into more productive forms. In Shippingport, Pennsylvania, the first reactor to be used for the production of commercial electricity was built. The atomic reactor also proved to be the ideal unit for powering ships both above and below the surface of the sea. The great destructive power of the atom was recognized not only in the form of a blast but in invisible fallout, and efforts were made to curtail the testing of atomic weapons.

However, not all the advances in technology were confined to the military. Industry took giant strides in automation, and civilian electronics came to the fore. We began what may well be called a second industrial revolution. Another revolution occurred in the field of consumer goods. There was increased mechanization in the kitchen, a car and a television set for every five people, and air conditioning in many homes. The burden of the housewife was lightened with the introduction of new methods of packaging and the increased use of frozen foods. Major breakthroughs also occurred in the field of medicine with the development of the vaccine against infantile paralysis and the discovery of more powerful antibiotics. Encouraging progress was made in the field of atomic medicine in approaching a cure for cancer.

The Fifties were a decade of economic prosperity and expansion. Industry grew rapidly as indicated by the increase in national income from $277 billion in 1950 to over $360 billion in 1958. A large measure of this growth was due to a rapid increase in population from 150 million people in 1950 to 175 million in 1958. This increase of 25 million in eight years compares with one of 9 million in the decade 1930 to 1940. The labor force grew from 40 million in 1950 to 66 million in 1958, because of large population gains in the Forties. The nation grew rapidly and an atmosphere of optimism was generated, as indicated by the increasing birthrate. This feeling of optimism was further strengthened when the economic growth trend proved strong enough to easily overcome two minor recessions which occurred in 1953-1954 and 1957-1958.

In essence, in this decade the world was vastly different from that which had confronted returning veterans after World War II. It was a time of rapid industrial development and of an upsurge in economic optimism. There was an atmosphere of vigor and of looking toward the future with confidence. It was a decade of great scientific achievement, both pure and applied. Man learned new means of lessening the burdens of life and of eliminating life completely. Perhaps these scientific achievements created more problems than they overcame, for if this decade lacked, it lacked in the social and political areas. It lacked in not being able to find solutions for the problems it posed; it did not teach man to live in peace with himself.

Such was the decade in which the class of '59 obtained its education. The full influence that the Fifties have had on our lives is as yet indeterminate. Future decades will tell the story, a story whose recurrent motif will be—"The Fabulous Fifties."

STEVEN RINNER

"Days Too Soon Gone By..."

Here it is—1959!

We are nearing the end of the Fabulous Fifties—ten years which represent a decade of outstanding achievement and world progress. To the graduates of '59, however, the latter part of the Fifties has an additional significance—the fond memory of our years spent at Van Buren High.

We remember our consternation at the immensity of Van Buren as we entered for the first time—its spacious halls, modern classrooms and laboratories, its tremendous auditorium and gym. Could we ever forget the irritation at constantly finding ourselves on the stairway leading to the roof instead of to the third floor? Reminiscences of our first few days in Van Buren bring to mind the warm smile and friendly greeting extended to us by Mr. Hopkins, our principal.

Those of us who entered Van Buren as freshmen will recall the first G.O. elections. How small and inadequate we felt then, looking up with envy at the candidates sitting on the stage, never dreaming that one day we ourselves, or perhaps our friends, would have the same opportunity; yet it never seemed quite the same once we were up there. Familiarity dulled the glamor somewhat, but, slowly, something of more intrinsic value began to form—a sense of leadership and responsibility.

Then came the birth of the G.O. We'll always remember the wonderful job done by Mr. Weissenberg, our first G.O. adviser. He was succeeded by Mr. Radwin who has carried on in the spirited Van Buren tradition. Soon the many committees were formed—Elections, Turkey Mountain, Publicity, Entertainment, Ticket Sales, Art, and Social Service; the student body turned out in large numbers—and we were in business.

Could we ever forget the honors bestowed upon our school, our own BeeLine winning a Columbia Press Conference Award, the city baseball championship, the cross-country awards, and honorable mention in the contest sponsored by Parents Magazine for our Creedmoor Toy Drive?

We will never forget Marty, our typical Van Burenite, who brought tears of laughter to our eyes with each new issue of the BeeLine; nor will we forget celebrating Martin Van Buren's birthday every year on December 5.

June 1957! That was the date Futura, our first yearbook, made its debut. Mid-terms, finals, Regents—these were strange new words that we were soon to become accustomed to.

Then, one day, we heard about Arista and found ourselves diligently doing our school work and rushing around trying to get service credit.

We remember the shows in which many of us participated—"Time Out For Ginger," "Highlights," "Showcase of 1957," and "Cyclorama."

We saw the birth of our teams, Cheerleaders and Twirlers. Cheering our teams on to victory was always part of our school life from the very beginning. We remember the many hours the boys spent practicing baseball, basketball, track and tennis in hopes of winning a major letter; and the after-effects felt by the girls after kicking and jumping for hours in their tryouts for Cheerleaders.

February 24, 1959 was a memorable day. Twenty-five hundred Van Buren students cheered at the Garden for our basketball team.

As sophomores, we welcomed Mr. Denn, our new principal, who, in very short time, became inseparable from our image of Van Buren High School.

How can we forget the dances—the V-B Bounce, Mardi Gras, St. Patty's Day, V-B Bop, Twirp, Victory, Winter Carnival, Junior Prom, and the Senior Dinner Dance.

September 1958—we were now seniors, ably led by Steve Raymond and Paul Frieser, and our senior adviser, Mr. Rappaport.

We awakened to the fact that we were now to choose a college and career. Soon we found ourselves engulfed in a torrent of college boards, scholarship exams, applications, interviews, references, and anxious waiting and worrying.

We were seniors! How could you tell? Certainly not by our fantastic display of senior hats, buttons, rings and keys, nor by the sudden all-knowing look about us.

Who can forget those frantic last-minute touches before being photographed for the yearbook?

Then came Senior Day and the Senior Show and those hilarious costumes you never thought your friends had the nerve to wear.

We unveiled Semavabu, our senior mascot, at the Senior Dinner Dance.

At long last we reached the semi-climax of our high school days—the Senior Prom in the magnificent Terrace Room of the Statler Hotel—the introduction of the Prom Committee amidst soft music and billowy chiffon.

And finally—graduation—the pride, the sorrow at leaving, the tears and good-bye promises, the wishing of luck, happiness, and success—and those words at the end of the ceremony, "Will the alumni please stand and sing the Alma Mater."

And as voices rose—loud and clear, you knew that the tears on your cheek were not tears of sorrow. They represented your wonderful high school years—years that could never be recaptured and yet never lost, for they had molded the foundation for a wonderful future.

You knew that these precious years had taken their place in a never-to-be-forgotten part of your heart—a part especially reserved for the Fabulous Fifties.

JO-ANN LOVE

Those Fabulous

The life of a teenager is the most boring, most exciting, dullest, most adventurous, happiest, most depressing part of your life. These are the times of laughing the loudest and crying the most. These are the times of striving to be like everyone else and trying the hardest to be different. These are the times—remember?—

when you spoke on the phone for three hours trying to figure out why nobody called—when you ate three candy bars, six doughnuts, two ice cream sodas, four tuna fish sandwiches before dinner and then couldn't understand why you weren't hungry—when you didn't have a thing to wear and complained about the lack of closet space—when you dreamed you would live in a mansion but kept your room like a pig sty—when you played music full blast and screamed to have a little peace and quiet—when you told your family to leave you alone and then had twenty friends over—when you saved every cent to buy that expensive cashmere outfit and then wore it with dirty sneakers—when you had too many friends one day and not enough the next—when you wanted to be a very sophisticated, all-around person but couldn't think of anything to talk about but boys—when you told the most sadistical jokes and thought sarcasm was the essence of wit—when you wore that drab green blouse that made you look sickly because it was the color everyone else wore—when you hated to go to sleep but refused to get out of bed in the morning—when you thought that the floor was the proper place to hang your coat—when you called your mother selfish because she wouldn't let you wear her new fur jacket, but then you wouldn't let your kid-sister borrow your pen—

when you played the radio from dawn to daybreak—when your parents called you a boarder—when you made trick phone calls and bothered people for hours but became positively furious if someone called you and got the wrong number—when you told your parents not to worry—you could take care of yourself—and then asked your mother to sew a button on your blouse—when your ideas were as big as the pocketbooks you carried—when you were positive he was the one for you until you met someone else—when high school boys seemed divine until you realized college fellows had cars—when you decided to study at midnight for a test you knew about for a week—when you went to your first dance and didn't dance—when you knew more about everything than anybody—when you thought a secret meant to spread the word—when you thought you would never start growing—or never stop—

Yes, you were part of those memorable Fifties when nothing was more suave than a new car, nothing more luxurious than two dozen sweaters, nothing more confusing than your plans for the future, nothing more annoying than parents, nothing more talked about than school, nothing more stimulating than music, nothing more important than a close friend, and, most of all, nothing more fabulous than those unforgettable teen years.

BONNEE WEXLER

Teen Years

It seems as though it were yesterday when you were just beginning high school, but here it is, graduation time, and you're ready to go out and face life. It's a bit frightening to realize how fast the time has flown, but we've got a lot of wonderful memories of those years. Just think back and try to remember

The time you went looking for work with your best friend, only to wind up with your ex-friend getting the job—

The time you discovered that your girl friend thought that your younger brother was cuter than you—

The frustrated feeling of having everyone step on your clean white buns—

The day you got your first learner's permit—

And the day you got your first traffic ticket . . . for driving too slow—

That time when your mother told you to get out of the house and go look for a job—

The winning basket you scored, while sitting in the back of the English class—

The time you actually did score a basket, on the wrong side of the court—

Your first day at high school when you discovered there was no swimming pool on the fifth floor (or on any floor for that matter!)—

The time you forgot your locker combination and had to track all over the school to get the number—

The time you had to pass up the chance to see Brigitte Bardot, because you had to study for a French midterm—

The time you bought a nebbish for your girl, only to discover it looked like her father—

Those happy mornings of getting up at dawn to ride to school like a sardine—

That Regents exam you thought you passed—

The night of the Prom—the morning after—

The day you got your second traffic ticket . . . for driving too fast!—

That time you came home with a 45% on an English test, and your father warned you, "One more like that and you can forget about college."—

That glorious day when Elvis was drafted, and you regained your girl friend—

The shock of seeing the "love of your life" in pin curls—

The time when your twelve-year-old sister's friends started making a big play for you—

The time when you first discovered your parents were right some of the time—

The time you bought a pair of saddle shoes, and everyone started teasing you, "Why don't you give your sister back her shoes?"—

The eternity that seemed to pass before you could get up enough nerve to ask the pretty girl in the math class for a date—

The self-restraint you exercised when your girl friend asked you naively, "What does Elizabeth Taylor have that I haven't got?"—

The time you dropped a tray in the cafeteria, and everyone applauded—

The tremendous thrill of seeing the school baseball team play in Ebbets Field—

Your college interview, when you swore you would never be accepted to that school—

That wonderfully happy day when you were accepted to that school—

Looking ahead to a new way of life is, indeed, a thrilling prospect, but there will be many a time when we'll wish we could relive those fabulous teen years.

Windows

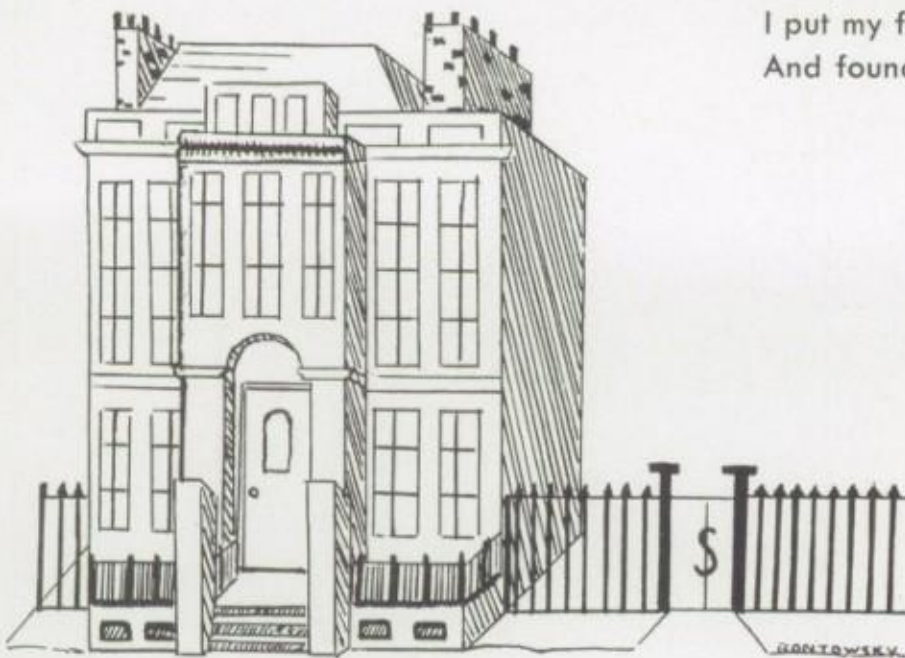

The road was long, forever flowing;
Many buildings sat beside.
Some were proud and strongly glowing,
Others cringed but could not hide.

The windows were in moonlight shining
Glittering elusive white
Fully clear they were, but signing
Chilly challenges to Night,
Living shutters to my sight.

From the cold a cottage beckoned
'Though its window blinked in wrath.
The night was cold; in but a second
I was on the grassy path,
Heedless of the aftermath.

I trembled with a lonely chill,
But qualms were melting as I neared.
I put my face up to the sill
And found the window disappeared.

"The greatness of a nation may be manifested in many ways—in its purposes, its courage, its moral responsibility, its cultural and scientific eminence, the tenor of its daily life. But ultimately the source of its greatness is in the individuals who constitute the living substance of the nation," begins the Rockefeller Report, "The Pursuit of Excellence." We believe that those who have excelled in their studies deserve the highest form of recognition, for, by excelling, they are contributing to the growth and greatness of our nation.

Our schools are dedicated to the training of productive, intelligent citizens. These pages, then, are devoted to those students who have shown a capacity to realize the highest goals of education.

Computation of scholastic averages for the first three years of high school determined each senior's rank in the graduating class. The highest average, that of Franklin Abrams, was 95.53%. The traditional "top ten" seniors, roughly one per cent of Van Buren's graduating class, in order of average after Franklin (the lowest average of the ten was less than two per cent below the highest) were Karen Siegel, Joyce Garter, Richard Frank, Richard Kazden, Rory Butler, Paul Levy, Alan Burg, Loretta Ortaglia, and Burton Brody. Several of them have distinguished themselves as scholarship recipients, and some have won honors in the fields of mathematics, physics, creative writing, and languages.

On the basis of the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, nine Van Buren boys—Franklin Abrams, Burton Brody, Alan Burg, Rory Butler, Richard Frank, Melvin Ingber, Richard Kazden, Jeffrey Ullman, and Ronald Walter—and one girl, Sylvia Houston, who came to our school from Texas last September, won Merit Honors. Franklin Abrams was notified that he had been chosen to receive a scholarship from one of the organizations supporting this competition.

As a result of the highly competitive examination for the Westinghouse Talent Search, Franklin Abrams, Richard Frank, Joel Singer, Jeffrey Ullman, and Ronald Walter achieved "honorable mention."

Forty-eight Van Buren students were awarded the general Regents Scholarship: Franklin Abrams, Ronald Bechky, Lois Blum, Jonathan Braverman, Burton Brody, Alan Burg, Rory Butler, Phyllis Dickstein, David Eizenman, Neil Feinstein, Richard Flam, Edward Flax, Robert Francescone, Richard Frank, Joyce Garter, Eugene Gellert, Eric Goldman, Richard Haber, Charles Hennekens, Miriam Horowitz, Melvin Ingber, Elizabeth Karetzky, Richard Kazden, Vera Kleinfeld, Susan Krell, Carol Lane, Stephen Lavenberg, Joan Lebowitz, Paul Levy, Robert Love, Stephen Oren, Loretta Ortaglia, Scholarships

Fred Percz, Bennett Pernick, Joshua Riber, Steven Rinner, Paul Schlauch, Joyce Schulman, Arlene Schwarzreich, Fred Siegelman, Lawrence Silbert, Joel Singer, Marvin Singer, Timothy Sullivan, Marjorie Swern, Loretta Tremblay, Jeffrey Ullman, and Ronald Walter. Of these, fifteen also received the Regents Scholarship for Engineering, Chemistry, Physics, and Mathematics: Franklin Abrams, Burton Brody, Alan Burg, Richard Flam, Richard Frank, Eugene Gellert, Richard Haber, Miriam Horowitz, Richard Kazden, Vera Kleinfeld, Stephen Lavenberg, Paul Levy, Joshua Riber, Jeffrey Ullman and Ronald Walter. Three girls—Susan Krell, Lenore Sachs, and Patricia Starr—received Regents Nursing Scholarships. Donna Schwartz received a Regents Scholarship for Children of Deceased or Disabled Veterans.

Eight members of the Paul Denn Chapter of the National Honor Society were selected—on the basis of high scores on the Scholarship Qualifying Test—to compete for scholarships offered by the National Association of Secondary School Principals to members of the National Honor Society. These eight were: Burton Brody, Alan Burg, Phyllis Dickstein, Richard Frank, Joyce Garter, Paul Levy, Jeffrey Ullman and Ronald Walter. Of these, Burton Brody, Richard Frank, Jeffrey Ullman, and Ronald Walter achieved high scores on the final elimination test, the General Aptitude Test, and are finalist candidates for the National Honor Society Scholarships awarded by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Certificates were awarded to Richard Frank, Joyce Garter, Jeffrey Ullman, and Ronald Walter after consideration of their College Board scores by the General Motors Scholarship Corporation. Joyce Garter received one of the hundred coveted General Motors Scholarships.

In addition to these more general scholarships, several students received specialized awards. Patricia Starr won a Nursing Scholarship from the Long Island Federation of Women's Clubs. Gail Tanz was a finalist in the Tobe-Coburn School of Fashion Scholarship competition. As this yearbook goes to press, before the termination of our senior year there will undoubtedly be other scholarships awarded.

The Rockefeller Report on education goes on to say: "A free society nurtures the individual not alone for the contribution he may make to the social effort, but . . . primarily for . . . the contribution he may make to his own realization and development." We are confident that these students who have achieved such singular scholastic honors will use them in a way that will further their "realization and development."

Toward More Fabulous Speech

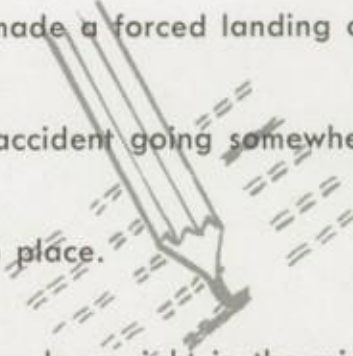

Her test paper looked as if an ink bottle had made a forced landing on it.

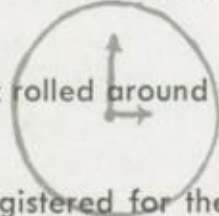

After the scholarship test they looked like an accident going somewhere to happen.

The answers were hushed about from place to place.

The student had a good memory and his tongue hung right in the middle of it.

As three o'clock rolled around they got as restless as windshield wipers.

The students registered for the fall siesta.

His boredom in history was as plain as the doze on his face.

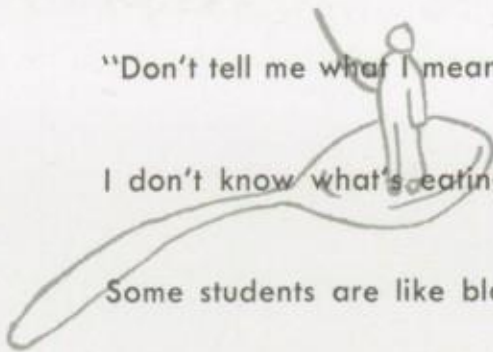

The students' biggest problem is working out solutions for the teacher's solutions.

Library observation: The notes used as bookmarks are often more enlightening than the books.

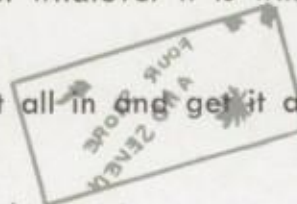

"Don't tell me what I mean, teacher. Let me figure it out for myself!"

I don't know what's eating that teacher, but whatever it is will have indigestion.

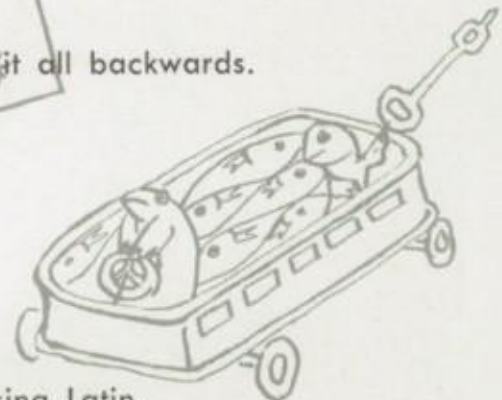

Some students are like blotters; they soak it all in and get it all backwards.

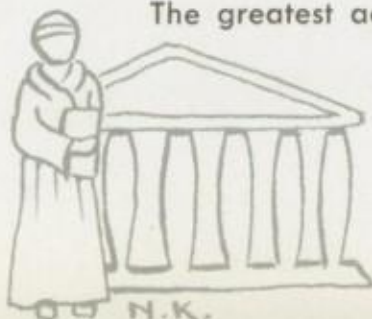

All work and no plagiarism make a dull book report.

"Driver, stop this can. A sardine wants to get off!"

The greatest achievement of the ancient Romans was speaking Latin.

RICHARD SWEENEY

The sensible sixties (not far in the fore)
Hold promise of changes that soon will arrive—
Of strange-sounding names on executives' doors
Or "We'll dine with the President, quarter to five."

Or, looking through a different glass,
And seeing other things,
We see a world in shiny brass
Of cabbages and kings.

Come, let's go on a little trip,
(Who knows where we may be?),
Just a hop and a little skip . . .
And . . . see what we can see!

The Sensible Sixties

In the soon-to-be sensible sixties
All the learning we'll be fed
Will be got in an effortless way—
While we're sound asleep in bed.
We'll take our lessons in coated pills
And digest them while we sleep.
Oh, we'll take a test while we get our rest
And our learning's all of the very best
In the soon-to-be sensible sixties.

In the soon-to-be sensible sixties
There'll be total automation.
Machines of unique capacities
Will permeate the nation.
We'll do our cleaning 'round the house
From a switchboard in the hall.
Each week, one day, we'll earn our pay
By pushing little buttons in a sedentary way
In the soon-to-be sensible sixties.

In the soon-to-be sensible sixties
Utopia will have come.
The East and West, the North and South
Will be molded into one.
Leaders of the world will meet . . .
To socialize at tea!
Oh, the birds will sing in eternal spring,
Guns and armories will be rarities,
In the soon-to-be sensible sixties.

Come with me to the greenwood tree,
To the soon-to-be sensible sixties.

BURTON BRODY

Our Way into the Future

With graduation now a reality, our thoughts turn to the future and what it holds for us. The people who have influenced the molding of our futures have been many, and yet, we alone are now responsible for putting to use all the things others have so knowingly and so unselfishly taught us.

Since our first days in school, our teachers and our parents have tried to instill in us a sense of sportsmanship and of responsibility to ourselves and to others, a thirst for knowledge, and an understanding of right and wrong. These teachings are of the utmost importance to us in getting along with others and living in harmony with the people in our society. Yet it is important that this design for living be put into practice, and in so doing will we be able to realize fulfillment.

The knowledge we have acquired in high school has served as a firm foundation on which we may build to strengthen our way of life in the future.

The time for frivolous, undisciplined thoughts and actions has come to an end. We have approached maturity and must now assume the responsibility and good judgment which, in turn, will lead to adulthood. Youthful impulsiveness should be replaced by carefully made decisions. The seeds of knowledge we have gathered during our high school years must now be sorted, and only those which promise to bear fruit in the future—the friendships, the learning, the love of life and the ever-enduring freshness of youthful ideas—will we nurture.

JO-ANN LOVE

Last Will and Testament

Eight terms ago, we, the Class of 1959, entered Martin Van Buren High School as freshmen. Now, after having confronted our teachers for nine hundred and sixty-eight days, we bequeath to them the following tokens of our fondest regard, in this will and testament, one that differs from all others — because it is ours.

To Mr. Denn, our principal, we leave a new senior class and our thanks for making our stay at Van Buren a memorable one.

To Miss Glenz, we leave this yearbook.

To Mr. Wolff, we leave our congratulations for his well-deserved promotion.

To Mrs. Feiring, we leave "the crux of the matter."

To Mrs. Desser, we leave a full house with standing room only.

To Mr. Polatnick, we leave some "real scholars."

To Mr. Castka, we leave a Bat Masterson cane and derby hat.

To Mr. Bramson, we leave "an element of an area."

To Mr. Radwin, we leave no more "extraordinary" elections (we hope!).

To Miss Wigiser, we leave enough leaders for eleventh and twelfth period assist.

To Mr. Crootof, we leave an unmixed metaphor.

To Mr. B. Rappaport, we leave the spirit of Semavabu.

To Mr. R. Rappaport, we leave Oliver Glutzman.

To Mr. Wheeler, we leave a pair of olive green desert boots.

To "Doc" Elstein, we leave a winnah!

To Mr. McIndoe, we leave a clear record.

To Mr. Piselli, we leave a gossip column and an editor-in-chief for next year's Beeline.

To Dr. Abramowitz, we leave his own TV show with top Trendex ratings.

To the entering class, we leave locker stretchers.

To the new senior class, we leave our mascot — and the riches of the senior year.
